

Abstract

An enhanced method and system for viewing and selecting from multiple options for a single data element, where all options are visible and organized into subgroups, whereby the user can select or unselect any option with only a single click, no modifier key required and without affecting any other option and can quickly locate the appropriate options and determine at a glance which options are selected.